Dear

STAT

Thank you for forwarding copies of The Business Roundtable's statement on economic strategy and its companion analytical compendium.

It is evident that a lot of solid thought went into this project. I hope you will not object to my sharing it widely with concerned economists here. Although their focus is on economic issues abroad, the relationship of their work to the U.S. economy is inescapable.

Thank you again for remembering us.

Yours,

/s/ William J. Casey

The Honorable William J. Casey Director Central Intelligence Agency Washington, DC 20505

Dear Bill:

In September 1983, The Business Roundtable formed the Ad Hoc Task Force to develop recommendations on how to improve U.S. industrial competitiveness and U.S. economic policy, and to comment on the many legislative proposals for a U.S. national industrial policy. On May 1, 1984, the Policy Committee adopted the attached statement entitled "Strategy For a Vital U.S. Economy."

June 1, 1984

The analysis and research papers developed in the course of this effort have also been published as a separate document entitled Analysis of the Issues in the National Industrial Policy Debate: Working Papers. A copy of this document is also enclosed.

The outcome of the current public policy debate on U.S. economic policy alternatives, U.S. industrial competitiveness, and on proposals for a U.S. industrial policy is critical to all of us. High federal budget deficits, together with high interest rates, are endangering the future growth of the U.S. economy, undermining the ability of American industry to compete in world markets, and exacerbating the adjustment to structural changes in our economy.

Having paid the price for wringing a stubborn inflation--15 years in the making-out of our economy, we must now walk a very fine line to sustain an economic recovery vigorous and stable enough to allow us to address our major problems, but not so buoyant as to risk a resurgence of inflation. This is of great concern to The Business Roundtable, particularly in light of the political impasse that threatens to perpetuate very sizable budget deficits and the inclination on the part of some to implement economic policy band-aids instead of dealing effectively with the tough economic policy choices which confront us. The policy choices which are made during the next 18 months will determine our economic health for the balance of the decade.
